Black Gold | The Petroleum

Petroleum remains the main source of energy in the world we live in. And until renewable energy is able to replace so-called 'black gold', we will remain dependent on it.

The sale of Petroleum and derivative products are a fundamental piece of politics foreign trade in the world.

History

The first petroleum well was opened in the United States in the state of Pennsylvania in 1859. It was only 21 meters deep, unlike the current ones, which reach over 6,000 meters.

He and others from the first wells were actually drilled in areas where petroleum reached the surface.

Application

About 90% of the petroleum is used for energy purposes, either in thermoelectric power stations or as fuel for transportation or industrial furnaces. Of the remaining 10%, the products that supply the industries are extracted (60% of the raw materials used in world industry come from petroleum).

The following are also obtained from petroleum: medicines, synthetic rubber, synthetic fabrics (nylon, elastomer, cold wool, etc.), coke, asphalt, tar, pitch, waxes, paraffin, varnishes, resins, matches, photographic films, petroleum jelly and even even chewing gum.

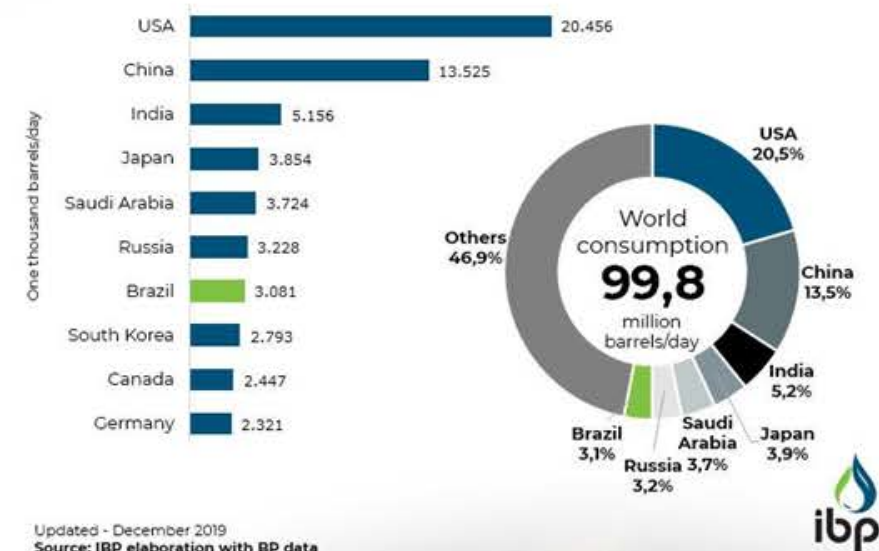

Top Petroleum Producers

Of the currently known deposits, the most important are in the Middle East, Russia, and the Caucasus Republics, the United States, Central America, and the northern region of South America.

Currently, the world's top ten petroleum producers are the United States, Saudi Arabia, Russia, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Venezuela, Mexico, and England.

Petroleum production and trading is measured in barrels, equivalent to a barrel to 159 liters.
